DELEGATE ELECTION,
Tuesday, Nov. 2, 1880.

PEOPLE'S TICKET.

"THE HIGHEST POSSIBLE LIBERTY TO MAN AND WOMAN."

For Delegate to Congress,
HON. GEO. Q. CANNON.

BEFORE ADDRESSING a crowded political meeting in Brooklyn on Friday night, Oct. 9, Cannon was a Garfield adherent.

BLAINE has bowed himself home in Indiana, and been obliged to cancel his engagements there. The Hoosiers are thankful.

NEW YORK Sun correspondents have polled Indiana, and find the democrats, on Tuesday next, will have a majority of 6,211. Keep these figures in your mind for three days.

A RAILROAD accident, resulting in the death of several parties, occurred in Connecticut on Saturday, but the strangest feature of it is, someone is to blame for it. This is a curiosity in railroad wrecks.

THE GOVERNORS of nine of the Southern States announce that they uphold Gen. Hancock in his views as to rebel war claims. The other southern governors have not even heard from on the subject, but there is no doubt as to what their answers will be.

THE PEOPLE of Quebec will probably be a little cautious hereafter in praying for rain. There had been a long period of drought, and there were public prayers all over the province for rain. The wet has been falling every day for four weeks, doing immense damage, and now the Canadians are thinking they prayed too much.

ACCORDING to Hancock's physician the man who says the general's health is failing "is an infelicitous liar." Hancock is as healthy as a man wants to be, and is in good condition to enter upon eight years' service at the head of the nation. After that work is performed he will remain around with the boys for ten or fifteen years before going into permanent retirement.

THE INDIANAPOLIS Sentinel, democratic, which has never liked the democratic nominee for vice-president, and though accepting him, has been decidedly sparing of favorable comment, now comes out and characterizes Mr. English, as "one who, whether in public or private life, has maintained an unsullied character, who, true to every trust, is above every suspicion, and in the grasp of whose mind every problem relating to national politics is solved." The republicans have professed to derive a good deal of consolation from the Sentinel's coolness and silence, but this masquerade and honest commendation of the democratic nominee will shatter the hopes of the enemy.

GREENBACK PRESIDENTIAL Candidate Weaver denies with greater emphasis than is called for, that he is the paid agent of the republican committee, as alleged by Lum, secretary of a greenback club. Weaver, in a long card of explanation and defense, goes into details, and gives the names and parties from whom he has received money for campaign purposes, and tells how he spent the money. According to his statement he has had, all told, only $1,695. Of this he gave $570 to other greenback workers, and spent $1,125 to defray his personal expenses and those of his son, who has been with him during the campaign. He owes $100 yet on his personal expenses, and the national executive committee is several hundred dollars in debt. But what has all this to do with Lum's charge? The fact that Weaver obtained $1,695 from greenbackers did not bar him from receiving $25,000 from the republicans, in whose interest his campaign work has all been done, and they will derive the benefit, not the rag-babies. It is also a fact that a man capable of selling himself and his party to another, is a like capable of denying the bargain, and would very naturally do so. Lum seems to have the better proof to sustain him in his charges of corruption against Weaver. Among numerous letters written by republicans, to greenbackers, proposing disreputable tricks, which are to be paid for, Lum exhibits one written by Jewell, chairman of the republican committee, inviting Weaver, Lum and other greenbackers to a consultation with him at New York. The traitor secretary affirms with all the positiveness at his command that Weaver contracted to favor the republicans for $25,000, and that one-half of the sum has been paid in cash. Weaver may be innocent, though the appearances are decidedly against the supposition, but guilty or innocent his little power has been taken from him by the Lum exposure, and he may as well stand out fairly for the republicans, doing his fighting open-handed and in sight of all.

THE VENERABLE Nathan Clifford, associate justice of the United States Supreme Court, was stricken with paralysis on Friday, while en route for Washington to be present at the opening of the court. The latest telegraphic accounts say he is in a critical condition. News of his death may be received at any moment. Indeed, we should expect to learn of his death, rather than of his recovery, though he would be mourned all over the republic. Justice Clifford is not only the oldest in years, but has been upon the Supreme bench longer than any of his associates. His justiceship dates from 1857, which makes him five years older in the service than Swayne, who stands next, and twenty years older than the junior justice, Harlan, who, by the way, is thirty-one years the junior of Clifford. Justice Clifford has lived out the three scores and ten allotted to man, and is encroaching upon four scores, being now in his 77th year. During late years he has taken little active part in the proceedings of the court, his age and declining health rendering him unfit for anything like hard judicial labor, or even moderately close application. It is understood that he would have retired, as he was entitled to do on full pay, several years ago, were it not for a determination that he felt and sometimes expressed, to hold his place until a democratic President could appoint his successor. Clifford is the only justice appointed by a democrat, his nomination having been made by Buchanan. We can admire his honor's "pluck" which has so long fought off death, and shored aside the ease and quiet retirement which age and faithful service entitle him, but it now looks as if nature were about to get the better of him by a large majority. We hope it will be otherwise; that death will withdraw its hand, at least until the old man can be gratified by seeing Hancock inaugurated, and be contented by knowing that a democratic President will make choice of one to fill the place so long, so faithfully, and so honorably filled by him.

IN THE fourteen presidential elections since and including that of 1824 Indiana has given her electoral vote six times to the republican candidate and eight times to the democratic candidate, as follows: Republican—1836 and 1840, Wm. Henry Harrison; 1860 and 1864, Abraham Lincoln; 1868 and 1872, U. S. Grant. Democrat—1828, '32, Andrew Jackson; 1844, James K. Polk; 1848, Lewis Cass; 1852, Franklin Pierce; 1856, James Buchanan; 1876, S. J. Tilden. Three weeks from next Tuesday Indiana will add one more to her democratic victories by giving her votes to Hancock.

AND STILL the Sultan holds his own single-handed against the combined powers of Europe.

"Widow Bedott."
On Monday evening the Widow Bedott Company will commence a two nights' engagement, playing Naby's dramatization of "Widow Bedott's" papers. Every person has read and enjoyed their peculiar humor, and especially the eccentric widow. Mr. Neil Burgess has made the character so realistic, and given such an original, expressly amusing and yet not unnatural idea of the habits and eccentricities of the widow that one can never forget it when he has once seen it. The company has finished a most successful engagement in the west, and stop on its way east to give a couple of performances here. This is what an exchange says of the piece, leaving out Mr. Burgess: "The play is acted throughout with the most mechanical precision and dramatic effect. There is no shamming, everything goes as smoothly as a quadrille of accomplished skaters, and the audience is free to enjoy the humor of the dialogue and the aptness of the situation without being hampered by the nervous anxiety inseparable from a confused performance. The cast is well arranged, and the company good. Mrs. C. H. Thompson's Mrs. Bedott is well rendered with ease and dignity. Miss May Taylor's Dottie is charming in both the acts in which she appears, especially in the first scene in the second act. Miss L. Feltman, in Bridget Jackson, is a successful and does not in the least overdo her difficult part. Mrs. Stoddard's Melba is a perfect piece of acting, and she is an excellent support to the Widow. The gentlemen are well cast and ably sustain their characters. 'Rich's' Tim Crane is inimitable and Stoddard's Elder Suffles is very amusing."

Acknowledgment.
As I was the drawer of No. 744 which took the GIFT HANNESS made and put before the public by C. J. Gustavson, Esq., I take this medium of thanking Mr. Gustavson for his generous and I shall take pleasure in showing the good work displayed on the same, to any one who may desire it. Respectfully, etc.,
E. J. PERRY.
Eleventh Ward, Second South, between Sixth and Seventh East streets. 10

Pianos.
Of the most reliable makers, at extremely low prices, at Carlees' Musical Emporium, First South Street. 10

Escaped Prisoner.
A person named Jeff. Dodge, in charge of Officer L. F. Weber, of Park City, made his escape last evening. Dodge had been arrested and fined in Park City for some petty offense, the whole expense amounting to about $70. He got the officer to go with him until he got money to pay his fine, but gave the officer the slip. He was next heard of at Midway when Weber went down and got him and brought him up on the Utah Southern last night. When about two miles from the city Dodge asked to go into the closet and was allowed to do so. Going in after him a few minutes later he was released having made his escape through the window and jumped the train.

Birds! Birds! Birds!!!
As I intend leaving in a few days, I offer my whole stock of Birds at Reduced Prices, Canaries $3.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

A Dinner Field.
New York, 9.—A number of New York's most prominent citizens called in an invitation to Cyrus W. Field, to a dinner previous to his departure for a tour south of the city. Field accepted the invitation with the request that the occasion be of the most informal and familiar character.

Terrible Railroad Accident.
Pittsburg, Pa., 9.—A terrible accident occurred last night, on the Pennsylvania Railroad. The Wells accommodation, which left here at 11:30, collided with a special train from Greenbury, at Twentieth street, where the rails occurred a few years ago. Both trains were filled with passengers, especially the Wells, which contained several marching bands, which participated in the democratic demonstration here to-night.

Over 1,100 Cattle Burned.
Sterling, Ill., 9.—This afternoon the cattle sheds at Mott's stock yard in More than half of 1,100 head of cattle in there perished in the flames; 600 tons of hay were also burned, and the loss will be heavy. The burning and bolting of the cattle was frightful beyond description.

FOREIGN.
London, 9.—A dispatch from Ragusa says: Riza Pasha has been carrying with delegates of the Albanian Catholic tribes and succeeded in gaining them over to his side. The Macedonian heights are being strongly fortified. A dispatch from Casteo Nuevo, Dominita, says there are three Turkish men-of-war before Dulcigno. The Montenegrin minister of foreign affairs has declared to Admiral Seymour that the powers are already in support in order to keep up their present force under arms.

A St. Petersburg dispatch says: The report that the English cabinet intended to communicate direct with the Russian cabinet has been refuted. The English cabinet has made no more special representation to Russia than to other powers.

The Dublin Mail says: The Right Hon. W. E. Forster, secretary for Ireland, has informed a deputation of landlords who waited on him, that he would regret if he should be obliged to suspend the writ of Habeas Corpus, but that government would do so if it became absolutely necessary.
